

Important Notice on Travel into New Brunswick

Last updated: November 4, 2020

Travellers entering New Brunswick from outside of Atlantic Canada must have a confirmation from the New Brunswick Travel Registration Program. Most traveller registrations are rapidly confirmed. Travellers coming from outside Atlantic Canada should register at least five days before their travel into New Brunswick. Travellers entering New Brunswick from the United States or other international locations outside of North America, and whose travel has been approved by Canada Border Services Agency must also register their travel through the New Brunswick Travel Registration Program.

Federally regulated workers entering the province from outside the Atlantic bubble are also required to pre-register.

Some travel into New Brunswick is prohibited, and peace officers are authorized to turn anyone away when they attempt to enter.

Permitted travel includes:

- residents of other provinces who must enter New Brunswick to work or to receive medical treatment
- residents of the Atlantic provinces
- any person traveling as required to facilitate children sharing their time between parents under an order or agreement providing for joint custody)
- New Brunswick residents returning to New Brunswick from work in another province or territory of Canada
- approved travel into New Brunswick to provide care for a palliative patient or for similar exceptional humanitarian or compassionate purposes. You can start the application process by calling the Canadian Red Cross at 1-800-863-6582 and selecting your language of choice. Once in the menu, select "1 – Affected by Disaster" then "5 – New Brunswick" and then "3 – Compassionate Travel to NB."
- attend a funeral or burial of a family member (self-isolation required with exceptions to attend service)
- people living in other parts of Canada who are symptom-free visiting their family members in New Brunswick, but those visitors must self-isolate for the duration of their visit up to 14 days for each visit.
- people living in other parts of Canada who are symptom-free and who own property in New Brunswick, but they must self-isolate for the duration of their visit up to 14 days for each visit.
- New Brunswick residents returning home from out of province
- commercial vehicles, aircraft, trains and water vessels delivering goods
- residents of Campobello Island entering to access essential goods or services
- non-residents are permitted to move to New Brunswick permanently in accordance with the requirements of the Chief Medical Officer of Health

Workers entering or returning to New Brunswick from outside the Atlantic bubble are now subject to modified self-isolation directives for 14 days with the option of returning to regular public health measures in the province by being voluntarily tested for COVID-19 and having negative results and no symptoms. Commercial air, marine, truck or rail operators, and daily commuters are exempt. It also does not apply to people travelling into the province under the authority of an operational plan approved by WorkSafe New Brunswick, as this already involves a work-isolation requirement.

If your travel is related to work, information on testing and modified self-isolation can be found here.
